

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

In this chapter, the researcher presents the conclusion and suggestion based on research finding and the discussion presented in the previous chapter.

5.1 Conclusion

Based on the data analysis discussed in the previous chapter, it can be concluded that Youtube Video is effective to enhance the students' writing in descriptive text of the tenth tenth grade students in IPA 2. It is proved by the result of the Paired Sample T-Test showing that Sig. (2-tailed) was less than 0.05, it was 0.000. Given that the research is one tailed, so the Sign = 0.000 was divided by 2 and the result was 0 ( $0 < 0.05$ ). It means that the null hypothesis ( $H_0$ ) is rejected and the alternative hypothesis ( $H_a$ ) is accepted.

The computation implies that there was significant different score in students' writing descriptive text between experimental class who was taught by using Youtube Video and control class who was taught by conventional strategy. The results score of post test in experimental class higher than control class. So, Youtube Video is effective to enhance the students' writing in descriptive text. By using Youtube Video in learning class, it can help the teacher to minimize the monotonous teaching and learning about writing.

1. English Teacher

In order to make the teaching learning English be not monotonous, the teacher can use a modern media in the learning class. For example Youtube, YouTube can be considered as the audiovisual material which can be employed to teach other subjects through English with low-level learners. Video helps the students enable to explore main ideas, organize ideas, choose of right words to create sentences and paragraph, produce grammatically correct sentences and use mechanic (punctuation and spelling) in writing. Thus, YouTube is effective in helping the students to write in English.

2. Future Researcher
