In this chapter, the writer would like to discuss introductions consist of background of the study, research problem, objective of study, significance of the study, scope and limitation, and operational of definition.

A. Background of The Study

Language is a main part of people communication and interaction. We can communicate with other people trough language. Communication has purposes to send message to other people. In sending the message, the sender does not only use an explicit message or direct expression. But also uses an implicit message or indirect expressions, where the meaning of message is different from usual message. We can define language as a system of communication using sounds or symbols that enables us to express our feelings, thoughts, ideas, and experiences, (E.Bruce, 2008). Therefore, language is useful to people communications.

Figurative Language is important in Language Teaching. In learning language, we do not learn formal language only, but also figurative language to make the more beautiful sentence. Moreover, it helps the students to interpret the figurative language in poem or others. By using figurative language, people can be create their feelings and to let the people recall the positive qualities and achievements of the deceased. Especially for student who learn about English language or one who get in touch with English language. They can learn figurative language from a song.

Figurative Language is a language used for descriptive effects, often to imply ideas indirectly. Expression of figurative language are not literally true but express some truth beyond literal level (Macmillan: 1984:261). Figurative Language is a beautiful words that's not in a real meaning. Figurative Language is part of semantic. As we know that with semantic we can know the true meaning in song. When listening to a song, many listeners not focus on the lyric used in the song. Usually they just liked because the music is good, fun, or because they just liked the singer. Understanding meaning about lyric in the song is important because we will know the meaning and purpose in the song. Because in creating a song lyric, a song writer tends to use figurative language to convey the literal meaning. Therefore, in understanding the literal meaning of the song, the listeners should have further knowledge about figurative language.

Inspired by those two kinds studies, the writer focuses on kinds, meaning and message of figurative language in Disney's selected song's lyrics . The Walt Disney Company, better known as Disney, is the world's largest media entertainment. The Disney company was founded on 16 October 1923, and the founders of this company were Walt Disney and Roy Oliver Disney under the name Disney Brothers Cartoon Studio.
