Dear Yudik Prasetyo,

We need some additional informations.

We publish our articles with references in order of appearance (you sent it in alphabetical). Of course - we correct it. But we have to know:

1. First sentences of manuscript - what reference should be there?

Everyone wants health by carrying out a healthy lifestyle and physical activity as their habit, not least in their late teens. Judging from the age group, adolescents can be divided into three levels, namely early adolescents (10-13 years), middle adolescents (14-16 years), and late adolescents (17-19 years). et al.; 2019.

2. I can not find in the manuscript where do you place following references:

[9] Campos, C. G., Muniz, L. A., Belo, V. S., Romano, M. C. C., & Lima, M. D. C. (2019). Adolescents' knowledge about the benefits of physical exercises to mental health. Ciencia & saude coletiva, 24, 2951-2958.

[16] Garcia, A. I. L., et. al. (2019). Association between Hydration Status and Body Composition in Healthy Adolescent from Spain. Nutrients 2019, 11, 2692. DOI: 10.3390/nu11112692.

[17] Ghalda, A., Gifari, N., Nadiyah. (2019). Pengetahuan Status Hidrasi, Persen Lemak Tubuh, Kadar Hemoglobin, dan Kebugaran Atlet Senam. Gorontalo Journal of Public Health. Vol. 2(2) Oktober 2019.

3. I can not find on your list of the references the one from quotation below:

Obesity is a condition in which the percentage of body fat is high which results in an imbalance in body weight. Obesity is the effect of many factors such as energy imbalance, drug consumption, and genetic factors (Hebebrand, 2020). This is one of the causes of several diseases such as type 2 diabetes, cardiovascular problems, cancer triggers, and mental and psychological problems (Hankey, 2019). Based on research conducted recently, it was found that obesity can also affect the condition of people who are more susceptible to Covid-19, this is because obesity has an impact on psychological problems that lower the immune system in the body (Husain et. al; 2020).

Please, reply as soon as possible, thank you in advance!

Kind regards,
