

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter presents the conclusion concerning the result of study and suggestions for the reader. The suggestions purposed for the reader's mastery in English, especially discourse analysis.

A. Conclusion

Based on the research findings and discussion in the previous chapter, the writer got conclusion such as below:

1. The type of grammatical cohesive devices found in selected narrative text is reference (personal reference and demonstrative reference), substitution, ellipsis and conjunction.
2. The percentage of each types of grammatical cohesive devices is, reference 98,7%, substitution 0,2%, ellipsis 0,07% and conjunction 0,99%. It can be concluded that the most dominant grammatical cohesive devices found in selected narrative text is reference.

B. Suggestion.

On the basic of conclusion drawn above this section presents suggestions for the English teachers, English students, and other researchers. The expectations of researcher will be explained as follow:

1. For English Teachers

The researcher hope the result of this research becomes reference in the teaching learning process. English teachers can make speech as the analysis object in discourse analysis especially cohesion. Besides, teachers are hoped can make the result of this research to teach the students how to analyze text based on theory of cohesion goodly.

2. For English Students

The English students are expected get more knowledge about cohesion, especially how to analyze text in right. The researcher also expects that the result of this research can give motivation for the English students to learn discourse analysis deeper.

3. For Other Researcher

This research result is expected can be reference for other researcher in conducting research which has the same topic. In addition, this research still has many weaknesses, so other researchers are hoped can improve it for the better result.